Asia-Pacific States

Mohammad Hassani Nejad Pirkouhi (Islamic Republic of Iran)

Born in 1971, Mr. Hassani is currently living in Tehran with his family of four. He is an alumnus of the College of International Relations, affiliated with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Islamic Republic of Iran. He got his BA in International Relations in 1995 and graduated with an MA in Diplomacy and International Organizations in 1997. He is fluent in English and Persian and is familiar with French and Arabic. He is the author of several articles in local journals on subjects related to international affairs with a special focus on the development of the United Nations.

He joined the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1999 and began his career as a diplomat in the Department of International and Legal Affairs. He soon became the officer-in-charge of issues related to the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific and several other issues related to statistics, infrastructure and sustainable development. In 2002, Mr. Hassani was posted as Third Secretary to the Embassy of the Islamic Republic of Iran in Jakarta, Indonesia, and for the next four years he was in charge of handling bilateral economic relations.

Back in Tehran in 2005, he rejoined the Department of International and Legal Affairs as the Senior Expert of the Directorate for International Specialized Agencies Affairs. He represented the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at the National Committee on Iran's Membership in International Organizations and administered the country's financial contributions to those bodies. He was also in charge of United Nations Fifth Committee issues (administrative and financial) in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

From 2009 to 2012, Mr. Hassani served as First Secretary and subsequently Counsellor of the Permanent Mission of the Islamic Republic of Iran to the United Nations in New York. Issues pertaining to the United Nations development funds and programmes, international macroeconomic and financial issues, social development, global health issues and international population and development issues were among his main lines of responsibility in New York.

Before and during his tenure in New York, he represented the Islamic Republic of Iran as head or member of delegation in numerous international conferences and board meetings and negotiated on behalf of his Government in relation to several major intergovernmental documents and outcomes.

Since his return to Tehran, Mr. Hassani has been assigned as Deputy Director for Human Rights and Cultural Diversity. He is now in charge of managing more than 10 experts in fields such as the right to development, non-governmental organizations, the universal periodic review, disabilities and racism.

Alvaro Esteban Pop Ac (Guatemala)

Mr. Álvaro Pop is a current member of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues and recently chaired the International Expert Group Meeting on Indigenous Youth: Identity, Challenges and Hope: Articles 14, 17, 21 and 25 of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, held in New York from 29 to 31 January 2013.

He is a political analyst that has studied political science and international relations in the Rafael Landívar University in Guatemala. In the last 15 years he has been an activist on the rights of indigenous peoples, especially in the fields of education, human rights, sexuality, health and citizenship.

He is a founder and Head of the Naleb Organization, an institution that analyses the national budget, the debate and dialogue about State reform in multicultural societies and the political participation of indigenous peoples.

He has maintained a constant relationship with indigenous institutions and organizations (Mayans and Garifunas in particular) that work in the rural area. In this regard, he has engaged in a provocative discussion with the media, officials of the international community, businessmen and officials of the Government of Guatemala with regard to HIV/AIDS in the rural and indigenous communities.

He is the Executive Coordinator of the National Campaign of Interethnic Dialogue "Nuestra diversidad es nuestra fuerza!" (Our diversity is our strength!), which is a coalition of various national institutions guided by the Centre for Mesoamerican Regional Investigations.

He has coordinated the National Commission for Constitutional Reform of the Indigenous Peoples. This implied discussions between indigenous and political leaders in order to present the consensus drafting of the proposal for constitutional reform presented for the consideration and further approval of the Congress (1997-1998).

He engaged in the preparatory process of the Identity and Rights of Indigenous Peoples Agreement (substantive agreement of the Peace Accords in Guatemala) and afterwards in the negotiation of the Fiscal Pact (1993-1994).

The international activities that Mr. Pop has participated in include:

- Guest of Honour of the King of Spain
- Participant in the programme for international visitors of the State Department of the United States
- Participant in the annual meeting of the Biarritz Group
- Panellist during the annual meeting of the Board of Governors of the Inter-American Development Bank
- Lecturer in the annual Congress of the Latin American Studies Association
- Analyst of the constitutional reform in Bolivia

Megan Davis (Australia)

Professor Megan Davis is Director of the Indigenous Law Centre and Professor of Law in the Faculty of Law, University of New South Wales and a Commissioner of the New South Wales Land and Environment Court. Professor Davis researches and teaches in the field of indigenous peoples in international law, indigenous peoples and constitutional law, and violence against indigenous women.

Professor Davis is a Fellow of the Australian Academy of Law; female co-chair of the Ethics Council of the National Congress of Australia's First Peoples; a member of the New South Wales Sentencing Council and a board member of the Diplomacy Training Program (established by José Ramos-Horta). In 2012, Professor Davis was selected by the Prime Minister of Australia to be a member of the Prime Minister's Expert Panel on the Recognition of Indigenous Peoples in the Australian Constitution.

Professor Davis has participated for over 10 years in indigenous international advocacy at the United Nations. In 2010, Professor Davis was elected an expert member of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues for the term 2011-2013; she holds the portfolios of gender and women and administration of justice. In 2012, she was elected Rapporteur of the Forum and Rapporteur of the Forum's expert group meeting on violence against women.

Professor Davis was the first indigenous Australian to be selected for the United Nations Indigenous Fellowship at the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights in Geneva, in 1999. Since that time she has actively participated in indigenous advocacy at the United Nations and has worked as a legal adviser to the Foundation for Aboriginal Islander Research Action and the Aboriginal Torres Strait Islander Commission at the United Nations Working Group on Indigenous Populations, the United Nations Working Group elaborating the draft Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues. Over the course of the past 10 years, Professor Davis has consulted for the United Nations Research Institute for Social Development, the United Nations Institute for Training and Research and the World Intellectual Property Organization. At the Indigenous Law Centre she has overseen indigenous non-governmental reports regarding Australia's compliance with its international obligations under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women. In 2005, she appeared before the Committee on the Rights of the Child.

Professor Davis has published widely on indigenous rights in international law. She is the Australian member of the International Law Association's Indigenous Rights Committee and is currently writing a legal text with Dr. Sarah Pritchard on the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples in Australian law. Her PhD thesis is on the right to self-determination in international law and Aboriginal women in Australia.

Professor Davis is a Cobble Cobble Aboriginal woman from South East Queensland and of South Sea Island descent. In 2012, she was awarded the prestigious National Aborigines and Islanders Day Observance Committee Scholar of the Year.
